Online Business Resources

The following tutorial provides a basic introduction to business databases and full text journal subscriptions available through the Klinck Memorial Library website.

The library has access to over 100 databases. To narrow your search for business databases, click on the Databases link on the left column of the library homepage.

On the Research Databases page, select Business. The list includes our current subscriptions.

Full text articles can also be found through the Electronic Periodical/Book Locator on the homepage. This tool will enable you to narrow your search for a journal or book that may be indexed in any number of databases. It will provide citations, most of which contain links to full texts.
To discover if the library has full text access to a particular journal, type the title into the box next to “Title begins with” then click the Search button. For example, input Harvard Business Review.

A list of records will appear with the words Harvard Business Review in the title. Each title provides a year range for which the library has full text access and a direct link to the database. Select the title you would like to view, then click on the database link.
On the database page, you will find the year, volume and issue of the item.
To limit your search for all the titles available under a particular subject, you can use “Browse by subject”. Select Business & Economics.
A list of business subject headings will appear. Each one will be followed by a number of journal titles. Select the subject heading Business Education to view the list of periodicals.
If the library does not have full text access to a resource, the item can be requested through interlibrary loan. From the library homepage, click on Interlibrary Loan Request. Here you will find a link to the Interlibrary Loan Request Form. Provide all necessary information. Click Request Material button. Once the requested items have arrived, you will be contacted by the Interlibrary Loan Department.
